Descriptions of Clean Waterfront Practices

We believe there is a major role to be filled by improving the construction methods and product choices used to develop personal property, working waterfronts and boating destinations. The TECHBlue Center attempts to raise-the-bar on waterfront construction.

As part of the TECHBlue Review process, we present Life-Cycle Analysis (LCA) results on new products and technology. We provide management tools to compliment and improve waterfront development based on these technologies – Low cost alternatives to big problems. The following are management descriptions used in a TECHBlue Review process

Professional Trade Information – membership and industry affiliations who have mission statements or agendas focused toward improving waterfront construction.

Performance Tracking – methods of recording performance based on recognized programs

Commitment Statement – public statement of sustainable waterfront policy

BMP Outline – updating procedure for best management practices and purchasing policy

Case Study – information is shared from on-going studies

Specification Standards – updating procedure for construction specifications

Community Projects – waterfront community involvement

Clean Marina Programs – status with state clean marina program

Environmental Programs – status with national, regional, state, and local waterfront programs

Review Monitoring Programs – status and involvement in waterfront monitoring

Regulatory Examples – conformance to national, regional, state, and local regulation

Warranty Verification – historical product performance
